In a survey, 40 to 60 percent of whites viewed the average black person as living a similar, if not equal life to white Americans. On the other hand, African Americans on many occasions reported that discrimination is still a dominant force in their lives (4). This difference in experiences of racial inequity leads to continued ignorance and obliviousness of the dominant groups while people in minority groups continue to face discriminatory situations on a daily basis.

Tolerance, open-minded, trait ratings, affective like-dislike, openness to reason, applied to any of the following –

- 1) Extant Social Cleavages – Race, Religion, Gender, Party Line (polarization)
- 2) Issue related cleavages – People who oppose me on this issue

Measuring Affective Like-Dislike –

A) Feel if son/daughter married opposing camp -

- How would you feel if you had a son or daughter who married a Conservative/Republican/Labour/Democrat?
- How would you feel if your son or daughter married someone of a different religion?
